The Vigilante Girl

Rarely have the old days in California been presented as in this entertaining story.

JUST READY

By JEROME HART

Author of "Two Argonauts in Spain" and "A Levantine Log Book"

MR. JEROME HART has succeeded in this book in accomplishing the difficult feat of combining historical fact with romantic fiction and these elements are most skilfully interwoven. The result is a well told tale with vivid characterizations of historic personages and strong pen pictures of early California hacienda life, its almost Parisian city life, and the methods of and reasons for the Vigilantes. Arthur Alden first saw the methods of the Vigilantes when he landed at "The Bay" as the present city was called in the fifties. Their brutality made him a staunch supporter of the law and order faction, but he falls in love with an ardent girl supporter of the Vigilantes and circumstances drag them both into the affairs of the parties concerning which they are so unalterably opposed.

THOMAS WENTWORTH HIGGINSON

says BY INHERITANCE, Octave Thanet's new novel, is the next book of its kind to Uncle Tom's Cabin. Here is the letter by this great authority:

I thank you much for the book you send, and can honestly say that you have published a very remarkable one; the next book of its kind to Uncle Tom's Cabin; far superior to "Dred" in a rivalry often vainly attempted by others. How to compare these pictures would, however, be very difficult, as the period of freedom has brought new problems and modified the whole situation.

I have known much of slaves and free negroes all my life, on their own ground, having spent a winter on my cousin's plantation in Virginia when I was under eighteen, and in later life having commanded a thousand freed slaves as soldiers for two years during the Civil War. But the very facts delineated in this book would at either of those periods have been impossible.

Some of the figures are certainly very finely drawn, as, for instance, the blind ex-slave holder; and again the colored woman who turns out to be the chief heroine and the most tragic one. I have had, however, several colored soldiers who had voices as sweet as hers without being able to read and write; and have also known several colored Harvard students as manly and warm-hearted as was the hero of this story.

But without ever having in view the precise spot where the scene is laid, I can truly say that I think Octave Thanet has placed herself near the head of American writers of fiction

ACCORDING TO MARIA

By MRS. JOHN LANE

12mo. Illustrated. $1.50.

"Not a dull page. The varied human interest of the book is well nigh universal."—Philadelphia North American.

"Mrs. Lane has the gift of gifts—humor. An original and sparkling book from the pen of a kindly as well as a keen critic of life. To view life 'according to Maria' is to find new zest therein. Maria is as inconsequent and dear as Mrs. Nickleby, and almost equally do we hug her sayings to our hearts."—N. Y. Times.

THE THIEF OF VIRTUE

By EDEN PHILLPOTTS

12mo. $1.50.

"Mr. Phillpotts has written many stories of this very land and this very people, but 'The Thief of Virtue' excels them all in dramatic power, in emotional pathos, and in realistic significance."—Boston Transcript.

"Something of kinship with 'King Lear' and 'Pere Goriot.' The foolish, tragic figure of Philip Ouldbroom is one to be remembered, and the story that embalms him like a fly in amber is genuine literature."—Chicago Record-Herald.

THE MACADA

By W. M. ARDACH

12mo. $1.50.

A story of the taking of the island of the Grand Canary in 1483. Juan de Belancour, an attractive young scamp, is sent with an expedition to Grand Canaria to keep him out of mischief. Here he experiences many adventures, in one of which he gets to know the Magada, or Maid of the Sacred Hill. Incidentally, we have a glimpse of the Canarios at war, at work and at prayer, and learn a little of the people whose chivalry remains as a tradition in the islands to this day.

THE ISLAND PROVIDENCE

By FREDERICK NIVEN

12mo. $1.50.

This is a buccaneering romance by the author of the Lost Cabin Mine. Howells once said that he thought the ideal book in the eyes of Robert Louis Stevenson would be "The Three Musketeers," by George Meredith. Stevenson might have enjoyed "The Island Providence" somewhat in the way he would have enjoyed the ideal book.

THE DIVERTING ADVENTURES OF MAURIN

By JEAN AICARD

12mo. $1.50.

"Sprightly and entertaining. A great relief from psychological studies and novels with a purpose. Reminiscences of Daudet in his Provencal and Tartarin moods."—New York Sun.

MAURIN THE ILLUSTRIOUS

By JEAN AICARD

12mo. $1.50.

"A large humor, a preposterous homeliness, a deliberate, almost rococo manner. Maurin would find himself in good company with Pantagruel, Don Quixote, Jasper Petulengro, Gil Blas."—Morning Leader.

ADVENTURES OF AN A. D. C.

By SHELLAND BRADLEY

12mo. $1.50.

This story of a young officer acting as aide-de-camp to the Governor of the Northern Provinces of India is filled with humor and gives an excellent picture of the amusing side of life among the English residents.

COUNTRY NEIGHBORS

By Alice Brown

Author of "The Story of Thyrsa," "Rose MacLeod," "The County Road," etc. 12mo, $1.20 net. Postage, 11 cents

Among the short-story writers of the day, Miss Alice Brown stands unapproached for the ability and power of her tales of New England life. The present collection, which contains the best of her stories written since her earlier successes, is of notable interest. Lovers of her short stories will find it the equal of any of her earlier collections.

The following are a few of the sixteen titles: The Play House, Saturday Night, The Auction, A Grief Deferred, Partners, The Challenge, Gardener Jim, The Masquerade.

"Alice Brown's characters always impress the delighted reader as being less story people than actual friends and neighbors."

—Chicago Record Herald.

THE ROYAL AMERICANS

By Mary Hallock Foote

Author of "The Desert and the Sown," "Cœur d'Alene," "The Led-Horse Claim," etc. 12mo, $1.25 net. Postage, 13 cents

This new novel from the brilliant pen of Mrs. Foote is in a new vein for her, but in one that will win many readers. It is an ample, leisurely, delightful romance of the days of the Colonial Wars and the American Revolution.

The book is an admirable historic picture of the time, but it is distinguished from most historical novels by Mrs. Foote's remarkable gift for portraying the relations between people, which gives to it all a human reality seldom found in books of this type.

MY FRIEND THE INDIAN

By James McLaughlin

Fully illustrated. Large crown 8vo, $2.50 net. Postage, 17 cents

A stirring narrative of adventure, and a first-hand, authoritative study of Indian character that cannot be passed by. Major McLaughlin has had intimate relations with American Indians for upwards of forty years, as Indian agent and inspector, and he tells of many thrilling episodes in Indian history, including for the first time the Indian side of the story of the Custer tragedy at Little Big Horn, and the story of Chief Joseph's famous retreat with his Nez Percés.

The Achievements of Luther Trant

By EDWIN BALMER and WILLIAM MacHARG

and SEE.

Trant is a detective, but—stop!—he's not your old-time detective.

He's not a Sherlock Holmes—he's far greater.

He is a brand-new kind, the latest—and the last.

This is what he does.

Instead of hunting for the mark of crime on things—the old way—he hunts for them on the minds of men.

He doesn't do it by any hocus-pocus. He does it scientifically—shrewdly—practically—unerringly.

HOW?

By psychology—that great science by which at last men are daily disclosing and defining the workings of that oldest of world-mysteries—the human mind.

Mere fancy?

On the contrary, the most indubitable fact.

Ahead of time?

A little,—not much. Trant's methods are the inevitable methods. They are the only methods of the future because they eliminate guess-work and the “third degree,” and get the right man. Think of it!—93 out of every 100 murderers are never punished.

WHY?

Because they can control their facial expression. But they can't control their thoughts; the psychologist can read them like an open book.

Trant does it—that's what makes his story so fascinating. Read it—and you'll understand.

At all bookstores. $1.50

The Taming of Red Butte Western By FRANCIS LYNDE

A railroad romance of vigor and dash; of love and adventure; of a double battle—the battle of a man against the weak point in his nature, and his battle to establish authority over his lawless command.

The hero, a young superintendent of high technical standing, but a self-confessed physical coward, is put in charge of a disorganized branch of a Western road. Gun play is common; to establish his authority he must overcome his weakness. This double fight, with its interwoven love story, makes an absorbing novel.

Little Aliens

By MYRA KELLY
Author of "Little Citizens"

With deep sympathy and full comprehension of child-nature she tells of the comedies and tragedies in the lives of the little foreign-born school children of the East Side slums.

The pages of her book are full of pathos and humor.

So strikingly portrayed are her childish characters, who talk in the Anglo-Jewish idiom of the locality, that they seem actually to live.

Some Musical Recollections of Fifty Years

By RICHARD HOFFMAN. With Memoir by MRS. HOFFMAN

Delightful memories of musicians and musical affairs in this country and England. The accounts of Jenny Lind and her appearance at Castle Garden and her tour of this country under P. T. Barnum; of Thalberg, Von Bulow, Gottschalk, Liszt. These and many other reminiscences of the audiences, musicians, concerts of the country fifty years ago, make up a fascinating book.

Danbury Rodd, Aviator

By FREDERICK PALMER

Rapid, thrilling narratives of navigation in the air. In Rodd, the hero, is presented the ideal driver of the aeroplane—cool, resourceful, intrepid.

He is the Knight-Errant of the future—of the coming era of aerial navigation:—like the knights of the past, he seeks adventure and the ideal woman. He finds both. His rescues, his perils, his love story—all this forms a novel vivid and fascinating.

The Black Bear

By WILLIAM H. WRIGHT
Author of "The Grizzly Bear"

This is the story first of the black bear "Ben"; of his habits, adventures, and characteristics. Then it is a study of black bears in general from the point of view of the student of natural history and the hunter. Mr. Wright, who is well known for his standard book on the grizzly, has given here an extraordinarily interesting and valuable account of the best known variety of bears in this country.

NOTES IN SEASON.

A. C. McCLURG & Co. publish this week "The Vigilante Girl," a novel of early California life, by Jerome Hart. It deals with a very interesting phase of the most romantic period of the West.

EDWARD STERN & Co., Inc., Philadelphia, will have ready shortly "Prince Domino and 'Muffles,'" by Seymour Eaton, who delighted the young people and many older ones with his "Roosevelt Bears," etc.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. will publish April 16 "The Red Symbol," by John Inrondie, a story of Nihilists, with a murder mystery, a daring journalist and a fascinating heroine; and "Just Between Themselves," by Anne Warner, a crisp story on married life and its little and big troubles.

INTEREST in decorative art is growing daily, and there can be no more useful and attractive volume for those planning a home than the "International Studio Year Book of Decorative Art for 1910," just being published by John Lane Company. This is the fifth issue of the publication, and, like its predecessors, it contains about four hundred illustrations in half-tone and sixteen plates in color.

REILLY & BRITTON Co. will publish about April 18 "Touching Second," by John J. Evers, king of second basemen, and Hugh S. Fullerton, the great baseball writer, a book fully explaining the science, development and mathematics of the national game and telling the story of "inside play" in the big leagues. The book was originally called "Big League Baseball" but will now appear under the title "Touching Second," touching second being a specialty of "Johnny" Evers, by which in the deciding game of the 1908 National League season he won the third consecutive pennant for the Chicago "Cubs."

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS' new publications include "The Taming of Red Butte Western," by Francis Lynde, a vigorous railroad tale of adventure; "Little Aliens," by Myra Kelly (Mrs. Allan Macnaughton), whose death occurred in England a few days ago—a book showing her sympathetic understanding of child nature; and Richard Hoffman's "Some Musical Recollections of Fifty Years," covering musical affairs in this country and England. On April 23 will come "Danbury Rodd, Aviator," by Frederick Palmer; "Philippa at Halcyon," by Katharine Holland Brown, who writes of college girls so successfully; and "The Black Bear," a story of his habits and adventures, by William H. Wright.

The last Uncle Remus book that "ever will be" is announced for fall publication by Small, Maynard & Co., of Boston. It is said that the title will be "Uncle Remus and the Little Boy." The same house will introduce a new detective in fiction—an almost unbelievable creation—but Edwin Balmer and William MacHarg have attained him in their book, "The Achievements of Luther Trant." In this book for the first time in fiction the detective abandons the time-honored methods of Poe, Gaborieau, and Conan Doyle and ceases to look for the marks of crime on things. Instead he looks for the marks of crime on the minds of men. In other words, he is a psychologist, but practical, not theoretical. "Luther Trant" is the young assistant in a psychological laboratory, when the opportunity comes for him to apply the ordinary tests of the human mind that he is using constantly in his work to the unravelling of a mysterious death that has occurred in the college itself. By the use of these tests he fastens the guilt on a man who was the least suspected of all, and his success leads him, naturally, to resign his position in the faculty and set up as "Consulting Psychologist." The story of his achievements marks a new era in detective fiction.

A tale of provincial France with rather a closely woven plot. Even more than the love story the friendship between Maurin and Pastouré gives the book its main charm. With all of a primitive people's original sayings and beliefs, with many lawless emotions and acts, Maurin is a dare-devil hero who is usually in some trouble, through his faults and a sense of fairness not understood by the average people around him, from which he has to be extricated. He is lovable and lends adventure to the book.

In this day when the "call of the wild" is so alluring this is a popular book, beside having the guise of a story.

Brasted, Fred. The gang; a story of the middle west. Phil., Griffith & Rowland Press, [1910.] c. 320 p. pls. D. cl., $1.25.

A story told with a purpose. The scene is laid in Scuddeville in one of the prairie states. The "tenderfoot" of the village recounts the vivid events which hinge upon political machination. Steven Russell is wrongly accused of forgery because of his daring in defying "the Party." His attorney, Bradgate, and he swing the public from antagonism to sympathy after his trial and acquittal. Destructive forces like the storms and cyclones of the West cause serious moral considerations which also help along the reformers, and, in the end, after a struggle with "White Caps" the new government wins. A love story is, of course, in evidence.

Bright, Ja. Wilson, and Miller, Raymond Durbin. The elements of English versification. Bost., Ginn, 1910. c. 12+166 p. D. cl., 80 c.

First author is Caroline Donovan professor of English literature in the Johns Hopkins University; second is instructor in English in the University of Missouri. Deals exclusively with the more external side of poetry—its metrical form. Part 1 treats of the individual verse; shows the nature of rhythm, meter, melody, harmony, enumerates and illustrates the various meters; defines tone color and the different kinds of rhyme; and concludes with a chapter on the scansion of verse. Part 2 is concerned with the grouping of verses into paragraphs, stanzas, and complete poems. Index of topics and authors.

Churchill, Winston. A modern chronicle; il. by J. H. Gardner Soper. N. Y., Macmillan, 1910. c. 6+524 p. D. cl., *$1.50.

The development of a complex personality amid complex conditions is the basis of this story. Born in France, and brought up in St. Louis under the quiet and old-fashioned espionage of an aunt and uncle, Honora Leffingwell, through her heritage, a false ambition and wrong valuation of money, makes a mistake in her marriage. Her life is followed in and around New York until the time when she secures a divorce in order to marry Hugh Chiltern, and learns that she has plunged herself into worse unhappiness. Fortunately for the reader, things end happily, and the good in Honora triumphs where another might have been pulled down.

Routledge is a brave American who loves "the most beautiful woman in London." The descriptions of Eastern lands and Eastern superstitions are an important addition to the original plot.

Confessions of a clergyman. N. Y., Macmillan, 1910. 7+149 p. D. cl., *90 c. net.

An autobiographical account of the experiences of a clergyman beginning with his preparation for the ministry. His contact with doubt, growing self-dissatisfaction and resolution to read more widely, led him to a broader view of Christian principles and gave him a doctrine which he here sets forth in a restatement of the Christian position in terms acceptable to modern thought and knowledge.

Coolidge, Asenath Carver. Human beings vs. things. Watertown, N. Y., Hungerford-Holbrook Co., 1910. c. '09. 222 p. pls. pors. D. cl., $1.

The heroine awakens to the fact that women spend too much of their time caring for old relics and useless things instead of making room for the sorrowing and homeless and giving them the chance to become useful members of the community. A great arraignment of the men who make the instruments of war and of the on-rushing commercialism of the day.

It is seldom one has the privilege of reading of ninety-two such well-ordered and finely rounded years as those recorded in these memoirs. One of a family of twelve children, born in Bradford, England, in October, 1814, Gathorne Hardy became like his father and great-grandfather a student of the law in Oriel College, Oxford. Perhaps of all the reading that which is most pleasant is the chapter of his home life at Osnaburgh Terrace during the first years of his married life. This lends a vividness of personality denied in the history of his achievements, interesting as they are. Bits of his diaries, letters quoted, and his favorite games, etc., bring us near him. He was called to the bar in 1840, became a conservative member of Parliament for Leominster in 1847, defeated Mr. Gladstone when he was returned for the University of Oxford. He acted as Home Secretary, Secretary of War, Secretary for India, and was twice President of the Council. Raised to peerage as Viscount Cranbrook in 1878 and created Earl of Cranbrook in 1892. He died in 1906. Index.

Cullen, Alexander. Adventures in socialism; new Lanark Establishment and Orbiston Community. [N. Y., Macmillan,] 1910. 15+330 p. pls. pors. O. cl., *$2 net.

This book presents not only the practical and rather unknown side of socialism, but has so much of Scotch human nature in it that it is interesting from this point of view as well. When one comes across a statement that out of three thousand children employed during a period of twelve years but fourteen had died, and none suffered criminal punishment, one understands what consideration in the employer may mean to the state. The New Lanark establishment has been written of before but the Orbiston Community has been without authentic record until now, which makes its history doubly interesting. Index.

Author is professor of plant physiology in the New York State College of Agriculture, Cornell University. Designed for use as a text in university or college instruction, to serve the investigator as a substantial reference book, and to present scientific information in an available form for those broadly interested in plant production or country life. There is embodied a discussion of the chief fungous diseases of cultivated and familiar plants, and each disease is considered with reference to its occurrence, the nature of the lesions or processes induced, the structure, life history, and cultural relations of the causal fungus, and practical methods for prevention or control. The literature of the subject is freely cited, and a host index provides a ready reference to all of the important fungous diseases occurring upon any host.

Bost., Boston Book Co., [83-91 Francis St.,] 1910. 230 p. O. lib. buckram, $3.50 net.

Covers in one volume an index by plays, dramas, and names of actors, actresses and playwrights, all the material and pictures that have been published in the periodical literature of England and America during 1909. Over 150 periodicals have been examined and references made to this material wherever found. The books of 1909 covering drama or any subject related thereto have been included, thus making the Index practically a complete reference book to the stage for the last two dramatic seasons. Many thousands of portraits of all the actors and actresses are referred to as well as scenes from plays, synopses of plots, and texts of dramas. Wherever possible, the birth dates and real names of stage folk have been given and cross references are made from the dramatists and librettists to the plays that they have helped produce.

"The unluckiest scribbler on which the all-beholding eye of day has ever looked"—and to this claim the author declares he will suffer no challenge, was the youngest of a family of twelve or thirteen—"I don't really know which," he says, "and it doesn't greatly matter." His childhood was utterly unhappy, and in later years ill-luck pursued him most of the time. The record, however, gives portraits of various noted men and covers a wide field of experience, largely in the journalistic field, making a most interesting volume, and in the end the Stepson of Fortune takes final leave in the character of her capricious Ladyship's prodigal, repentant and reinstated son.

A fair monograph of this series, on Texas. The author, though he feels sympathy for the people and the system being "reconstructed," has borne in mind also the pressing problems of the national government, and the forces determining its policies. This has been a valuable corrective. From the Secession movement, through the Confederate War, under Provincial government, and the Congressional Reconstruction are the main epochs considered. The "Quæstiones naturales," being the latest thoughts of the classical world on physical speculation, must be regarded as occupying historically an important position.

Sinclair, Upton Beall, jr. Prince Hagen; a phantasy. Chic., Charles H. Kerr & Co., 1910. c. 249 p. D. cl., $1; pap., 25 c.

A fantastic satire on the modern money greed and money power. Upton Sinclair draws a lesson from the Nibelung Ring in the murder of Siegfried by Alberich's son Hagen. The key to the interpretation he wishes given is contained in his words: "of what use is it that a man strives for the high gifts of the soul, when all the world is filled with the wonder of such things as these—when Hagen and Hagen's power and Hagen's glory are the talk of all, the ideal of all?"

A careful study has been made of the construction of works of the great classic authors. Not only are the author's own scansion and emendations given, but he also cites the conclusions of other authorities, where they differ or agree with him: to the equality of measure in Pindar's lines he has given twenty years of study. Bacchylides, Sophocles, Euripides and Aristophanes are other studies presented. Appendices, one especially useful on musical scansion, and index.

Wallace, Helen. Blind hopes; with a front. by H. L. Bacon. N. Y., Cassell, 1909, [1910.] 342 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Begins in Antwerp, where Lady Lucy Heriot who had left her husband's home to marry Sir Sholto Heriot and had kept them both away from their ancestral possessions for many years, is living. After Lady Lucy dies the story drifts to English ground and the disagreements about family estates. Lady Lucy's son learns many lessons before he finally gives up his claims to entailed estates to marry the woman who has taught him the small value of the "blind hopes."

The Publishers' Weekly

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT

April 9, 1910

The editor is not responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

Publishers should send books promptly for weekly record and descriptive annotation, if possible in advance of publication. The Record of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

ANNUAL TRADE PUBLICATIONS.

THIS week the 1909 volumes of both the English and American Catalogs appear.

The English Catalog follows the same alphabetical arrangement by author and title as heretofore, showing a slight increase in number of pages. The American Catalog was saved from a marked increase in bulk only because the repeated list of the year's publications, with their PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY annotations, is this year omitted. The demand for this list has proved slight, and the regular dictionary catalogue has grown to such proportions that curtailment had to be made somewhere if a volume of too great bulk was to be avoided.

As it is, partly owing to the subject entries and cross references entirely lacking in the English Catalog, partly to the greater bibliographical fulness and more open typographical arrangement in the American Catalog, the latter is, as usual, considerably larger than its companion publication.

Beside the regular complete list of publishers and individuals or bodies publishing books, the American Catalog has this year, as an entirely new feature, a carefully selected list of the booksellers in the more important cities of the United States and Canada, with blank columns for annotation.

The Annual Library Index for 1909, which also appears this week, added last year to its condensed index to periodical literature and general literature, which has proved invaluable to libraries and literary workers, a new feature which should make it equally invaluable to the publishing trade. This new feature, considerably enlarged and more carefully collated this year, is a selected list of libraries of the United States and Canada, compiled now under the auspices of the Library Journal. This list aims to be not only complete within the limits of selection set, but authoritative, giving not only names and addresses, but also the librarian, number of volumes and carefully verified data regarding income, expenditures and book purchases.

The Trade List Annual appears later in the year, but the preparation of trade lists for 1910 is already well under way in most publishing houses and in others the matter will require early attention; now, while there is still opportunity, it is advisable to call the attention of those responsible to some common defects in trade list arrangement, slight perhaps in themselves, but most exasperating to the retail bookseller whose tool, especially in the form of The Trade List Annual, the publisher's list is.

Some lists seem to be made up on the scrap-basket principle; a jumble of items in a hit or miss order, with neither author, title, subject, or any other apparent arrangement. When, to cap their uselessness, they are unprovided with any sort of index, they might, for all practical service to the trade, never have been printed.

In a catalogue for the general public it may conceivably be advisable to adopt such a hit or miss order in an endeavor to attract the reader into running through all the pages in search of what he wants, though even here it may be questioned whether the reader is not more annoyed than attracted. But a trade list is for the trade and the retail bookseller doesn't order his books by sitting down, the Trade List Annual spread out in his lap, and idly running over the catalogue pages. He consults it to find immediate information about a certain book or author; and the more accessible his information is made for him the better he likes it.

Of course, the ideal solution of the indexing problem, so far as the Trade List Annual is concerned, is a consolidated index to the complete book. This, however, aside from the enormous expense involved, has proved impracticable from an editorial point of view solely on the question of the time involved in compilation. The English Reference Catalog, corresponding to our Trade List Annual, solves the problem by publication but once in four years. We have always felt, however, that the advantages of annual publication outweighed even the addition of an index.

Lastly—and only an habitual user of the Trade List Annual knows how simple but how very important this is—every list should have the name of the publisher at the head of each page. The thumb index guides to the proper letter of the alphabet; but a proper running title would direct the eye at once to the publisher's individual catalogue, making the initial reference practically instantaneous. Any publisher who disregards this rule does so, as any bookseller will bear witness, to his own material disadvantage.

THE CONFESSIONS OF A LITERARY DRUMMER.*

SELLING literature is what I seriously believed my occupation was to be, when I first went on the road for a publishing house. The craftsmanship of the story teller, the plot of the story, the execution, the style, the artistry—these were some of the features upon which I would expatiate and dilate, and with which I would woo the orders from reluctant buyers. With this belief in mind I carefully read the new books I proposed to sell; I studied them; I pondered over them; trying to determine what excellencies of style, of construction, of craftsmanship would appeal most tellingly to booksellers.

With this belief in mind I started to sell my first bill of goods, the goods being literature. It was an important event in my life, and one that made a lasting impression upon me. My customer was an elderly lady, unmarried, who having been brought up in the bookstore of her father, had upon his death succeeded to the business.

"She has been in a bookstore thirty years," I said to myself. "Therefore she knows books; she appreciates good books; she loves them."

In the back of her little emporium, where I was surrounded, it is true, by books, but also by such unliterary objects as rolls of wall paper, stacks of writing tablets, calendars, souvenir postal cards, shelves full of ledgers, account books and filing cases, I unpacked my trunk and displayed my wares. And as I drew forth each book, or cover, or few leaves of paper, or whatever I possessed which represented a book that was going to be, I dwelt long and lovingly upon it. I told the story of each novel, and I endeavored to tell it to that old lady in just the way that would have made it appeal to Walter Pater or Henry James. To be sure, my little lecture was accompanied by some disconcerting incidents. A phonograph in the front of the store squawked "Waltz me around again, Willie," with monotonous persistency and maddening iteration. And it seemed fated that whenever I was in the act of making a particularly telling point some customer should approach, upon which my audience would desert me instantly to sell a lead pencil or ten cents' worth of writing paper. Besides, my customer's manner of receiving the information I imparted to her was, to say the least, uninspiring. It consisted of a repetition of the syllables, "um-um." If I said a thing was very good, she said "um-um." If I confessed it was rather poor, she said "um um." And um-um, in a mechanical and non-committal tone, was the only response to my most eloquent periods. When the trunk was empty and I was through, I paused, flushed and excited.

"Well," said the elderly lady, in a disparaging tone, "is that all you've got? I hoped your house would have something real good this year."

"Good," I cried. "Great goodness, madam, they're all good; there's nothing but good books strewn all around here."

"No," she said, shaking her head, "your books don't look pretty. I don't believe I feel like placing an order this year."

With madness in my heart I repacked my trunk. And that very afternoon, after an exciting altercation with the proprietor of a department store, a gentleman who spoke with a strong German accent, I sold him fifteen hundred wretched little paper books, with awful staring covers and insides which no intelligent child of ten could by any possibility mistake as literature.

But the preconceived notions, if not of a lifetime, still of a few months, are not easily cast aside, and as I continued my trip I continued also to try to sell books by pointing to the features which would have made them appeal to Walter Pater or Henry James. With the result that I momentarily expected a telegram from my house, summoning me to return in disgrace.

At last, in a dingy hotel in a dingy town, I saw a light. My customer had deserted me, after a half hour of evident abstraction on his part, and desperate but waning enthusiasm on mine. He crossed the hall and entered the sample room of a fellow-professional, a brother literary drummer, where books were strewn on sheet-covered tables. And I, gazing from afar, saw my erstwhile customer comfortably lounging in a chair, while my comrade in art, coat off, hat on, gesticulated, and in strident tones harangued.

"Now, Joe," said he, talking round a cigar that had apparently grown fast to his mouth, "I'll give you the straight dope. This novel here is merchandise, and you want a hundred copies; this novel is literature, and one will about do you."

With astonishment and dismay I saw the customer nod assent to this apportionment of merchandise and literature. "Merchandise, and you want a hundred copies; literature, and one will about do you." Shades of the stylists, and men of letters; sacred names of Walter Pater and Henry James.

I sought out my brother traveller as soon as I might, and questioned him.

"Is it true," I said, "that books of genuine literary merit do not appeal to the trade?"

"It's the straight goods," he replied, talking round a toothpick, which had supplanted the cigar. "Literature don't make a hit nowadays."

*As to the truth of these marvelously frank "Confessions" appearing in the current number of The Bookman, the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY distinctly ventures no opinion.

"But can't we educate the public through the bookseller?" I said. "Can't we elevate the taste of the trade? Can't we appeal by showing the artistic merit of a book, the style, the story telling, the characterization, the dramatic strength, subtle humor, the irony, the artistry, and all that?"

"You bet we can't," he replied tersely, "unless we're millionaires travelling for pleasure. Don't try to shoot any hot air like you mentioned into the booksellers in the small towns; but play the old; sure, reliable favorites. If you've got a new book by a popular author, tell 'em it's absolutely the best he's ever done. If the author's new, tell 'em it's a crackerjack good story—the heroine a peach, something doing all the time, and a happy ending. That's the dope. I see you're new at the business, and maybe you're a college feller who's got some ideas that haven't been tried out yet. Well, don't take my word for it, young man. What's your next town?"

I told him.

"The only man you see there is Hammelstein. He's the buyer in the big department store, a smart bookman, none better, and he certainly knows how to merchandise books. You ask him about merchandise and literature, and what makes books sell."

The next day I met Mr. Hammelstein, small, shrewd, suave and watchful; and by way of making conversation I asked him what made books sell in his store.

"Oh, I try to pick the winners," he answered. "If I pick mostly winners, people come to rely on my judgment, so when they see a big pile of some book on the counter or in the window, they say—that must be all right—and get it."

"But what makes the pile?" I asked.

"Well, the author's a big reason, maybe the biggest. If a man writes a best seller one year, people are ready to give him a try the next time he comes out. Then the advertising counts for a lot. And the appearance of the book—the cover, and the paper jacket—that's very important."

"Anything else?" I said.

"Well, illustrations help some; good, lively pictures, in color, especially with young girls. And a good, catchy title counts for a lot. Yes, sir, a good title is mighty important. Something new and striking, something that gets people guessing, something that's easy to say and hard to forget—makes a successful title; and a successful title mighty often makes a successful book."

"Don't your customers often look inside the books before they buy?" I asked hopefully.

"Oh, sometimes, not always," he answered. "Women do it; and they most generally look at the last pages."

"At the last pages?"

"To see if the story ends right. If it don't, they won't take it, nine cases out of ten."

"And how about novels of genuine literary merit?" I questioned.

"Nothing doing; they don't sell," he replied. "I buy them one at a time, on special orders."

Discouraging testimony, but I still persisted in my efforts to sell books by describing them according to the standards of Walter Pater or Henry James, and thus appealing to the literary tastes of the buyers. At the same time I carried on a diligent investigation into the literary canons of the people I met, and I was persistent in asking my customers what books were popular, and why. The answers were vague, and as a rule could be reduced to two fundamental reasons. One—a book sold well "because our people liked it." Two—a book did not sell at all, it stuck, was a plug, "because our people didn't like it." Sometimes a dealer would go behind these fundamental reasons and feel that the publisher was in some mysterious way responsible for the failure of his books, when they did fail. But I noticed that when, on the other hand, a book succeeded, the credit attributed to the publisher was most meagre.

In my quest for information I one day sought a customer in his cellar, where he was engaged in the prosaic task of breaking up boxes.

"Of what character are your most profitable books?" I asked.

"There ain't any money in books," he replied, with a vicious bang of the hammer.

"Of course," I replied hastily. "So many booksellers feel that way. But what kind of books should you say are least unprofitable?"

"Well," he said glumly, "I sell mostly fiction."

"Ah," I said, with the zest of a biologist tracking a germ to its lair, "and what kind of people buy the most fiction from you?"

He wiped his forehead reflectively.

"The young ladies in the boarding-schools round here buy a good deal," he replied; "and as I'm right handy to the hotel, I get a pretty nice transient trade from the drummers. And I always have some lady customers who'll buy a good love story; and sometimes a man I know will come in to get something to kill time while he's on the train or his family's away. There was quite a movement among some of the married ladies of this town to get their husbands to stay home and read novels instead of playing poker down to the Elks' Club. But that's sorter died out."

Here was illuminating information. Boarding school misses and drummers as arbiters of literary taste: time-killing and an antidote for poker, as functions for fiction.

"I tell you what people want in a novel is a good story," cried my customer, above the crash of breaking boxes. "They ain't buying Bibles, or text books, or scientific pamphlets when they get fiction; and they ain't crying out to be improved when they're tired, and want to be amused with a good yarn."

I considered my customer reflectively. At Christmas time he sold books; about St. Valentine's Day he sold valentines; Easter cards at Easter; fire crackers for the Fourth; favors for Hallowe'en parties, and books again at Christmas. Between while he sold letter paper, ledgers, souvenir post cards, wall paper, and crêpe paper, lead pencils, playing cards and fountain pens, typewriters and phonographs. He worked in his store eleven hours a day, and six days a week. He was a small merchant in a small town, bounded by the narrow horizon of a small merchant and circumscribed by the narrow life of a small town. How could I appeal, with my gabble about style, characterization, subtleties of humor, color and artistry, and the standards of Walter Pater or Henry James?

That very day I received from my house the sheets and the cover of a new novel. Upon that cover was the head of a girl, brilliant as to complexion, luxuriant as to hair, adorable as to her hat. The title was "The Princess," something or other. The story, well, I read it during a railroad journey, in a dim and dirty car, riding over an awful track, through dreary scenery and the journey was endurable. The book was not what I should call literature; the plot was rather palpable, the characters were types, the conversations stilted and the style crude; but in the language of my drummer friend, "there was something doing all the time" in that story. It gave me some hours of innocent if not very improving amusement.

The next day I set that story in the place of honor on my sample table.

"Well, what's new?" asked the customer.

"This," said I, holding up "The Princess something-or-other," "is a crackerjack, a winner. It's merchandise," I cried, endeavoring to keep my cigar from tumbling out of my mouth, "and you want a hundred copies. And this," I went on, holding up the book I had formerly advocated with enthusiasm and held up to admiration as a model of style, characterization and craftsmanship according to the standard of the elect, "this is literature. One copy will about do you."

MR. BURKHARDT CELEBRATES HIS 25TH ANNIVERSARY WITH E. P. DUTTON & CO.

ON April 6th, the employees of E. P. Dutton & Company commemorated the 25th anniversary of Chas. A. Burkhardt's association with E. P. Dutton & Company by presenting him with a Silver Loving Cup, with the following inscription:

CHARLES A. BURKHARDT
From his Associates to honor the Completion of his Twenty-fifth Year of Service with
E. P. DUTTON & COMPANY
1885 April Sixth 1910

"How well in thee appears
The Constant Service of the Antique World
When Service Sweat for Duty, not for Need."
—As You Like It.

The address of presentation was delivered, on behalf of employees who had assembled together at the close of business hours, by Cass Richardson, who, with one exception, is the next in the seniority in the service of the house.

Mr. Richardson touched in a humorous way on many incidents of Mr. Burkhardt's association with the house—concluding with:

"You have something that is worth a great deal more than money,—the love and esteem of everyone employed here, not only at present, but those who have been employed here.

"We felt that we should like to make some little expression of our love and affection for you—and we have here a loving cup. If it represented the size of our affections it would require one exceeding this very much in size. That we hope will come 25 years from now at the celebration of your Golden Anniversary with the house—and I hope a great many of us will be here to take part.

"I do not know the inscription on the cup, but know it might well be:

"To the largest-hearted, best-loved store manager in the City of New York, Charles A. Burkhardt."

The loving cup was designed and made by Reed & Barton, and is a striking example of the silversmith's work, standing twelve inches high on an ebony pedestal.

On the reverse side to the inscription is engraved the Cartouche design, used as E. P. Dutton & Company's title-page emblem, altered, however, to bear Mr. Burkhardt's initials and the years of his service.

The officers of the company had also, earlier in the day, appropriately observed Mr. Burkhardt's anniversary.

LAIRD & LEE MOVE.

LAIRD & LEE are moving from their old addresses, 263-265 Wabash Avenue, where they have been for a score or more years past, to new and more commodious quarters at 1732 Michigan Boulevard. The change is necessitated solely by the demands of a very rapidly increasing business, especially in their dictionary and vest pocket lines. Sales in the latter have increased enormously in the last few years. The new headquarters of the firm are newly fitted up throughout and out-of-town members of the trade are most cordially invited to drop in and look them over.

BELKNAP & WARFIELD SUCCEEDED BY G. F. WARFIELD & CO.

ONE of the oldest and best known book-stores in the country changed hands this week when George F. Warfield bought out Leverett Belknap's interest in the firm of Belknap & Warfield. The change is an entirely friendly one, Mr. Belknap merely feeling that after forty-six years of faithful service he is entitled to retire. The booktrade is to be congratulated that the change is one assuring the continuance of traditions now well toward a century old.

The present house of G. F. Warfield & Co. really dates from 1830, the business being founded by H. F. Sumner and D. F. Robinson, later mayor of Hartford, under the firm name of H. F. Sumner & Co. The place of business was then at 20 State Street.

At that time Flavius A. Brown, who was afterwards to be connected with the house for many years, was a teacher of penmanship and worked on the books of the Sumner firm. In 1835 Caleb M. Packard gave up his place as bookkeeper for the Society for Savings and, with Mr. Brown, bought the business, which was continued three years by this firm of Packard & Brown. Then Mr. Packard retired and E. W. Parsons became a member of the firm, which was known as Brown & Parsons. The State Street location of the store was retained several years, and in 1844 Brown & Parsons bought the business of John Paine, the successors of Daniel Burgess and Spaulding & Storrs, who had kept a bookstore on Main Street. Brown & Parsons moved into the store they had bought, remaining there until April 1, 1846, when they crossed the street and began business at the corner of Main and Asylum Streets.

Mr. Parsons retired in January, 1852, and Mr. Brown conducted the business six years, when William H. Gross became his partner, under the firm name of Brown & Gross. They moved in 1869 to the present store at Nos. 77 and 79 Asylum Street. Mr. Brown died February 13, 1880, and on April 1 of the same year Leverett Belknap was admitted to the firm. In 1890 George F. Warfield became a partner in the house. Mr. Gross died March 17, 1891, and in May of that year Belknap & Warfield succeeded to the business of the house, Mr. Belknap and Mr. Warfield buying the interest of Mr. Gross's estate.

The store, once a corner bookstore, has been a resort for the literary people of Hartford as was the Old Corner Bookstore for literary Boston.

George F. Warfield, who has been connected with the house nearly a quarter of a century as bookkeeper, clerk, junior partner and now the head of the new house, was born in Palmer, Mass. He came to Hartford in 1884 and became bookkeeper for Brown & Gross. Three years later he entered the office of the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company, remaining there about a year and a half, when he again entered the employ of Brown & Gross. Since 1890 he has been closely associated in the conduct of the store. Mr. Warfield advises us that he is the sole proprietor of the business, the "Co." being such in name only.

BOOKBUYERS ANNUAL FIELD DAY.

THROUGH the courtesy of Governor George M. Hill the annual Field Day of the Palmer House Book Fair will be held at the Skokie Country Club, Chicago, on Friday, July 8.

This is the day when buyers and sellers will meet together in the open. Heretofore this event has taken place at the Hinsdale Country Club, through the courtesy of Brent Vaughn. The reason for the change is that the visitors may have a look at other country clubs from year to year.

There is some thought of discontinuing the ball game and substituting events in which every one can participate. The western team, which has hitherto been invincible, has suffered from desertions and contract jumping.

The committee in charge will open an office at the Palmer House during the Book Fair.

BEST SELLING BOOKS IN MARCH.

ACCORDING to the Bookman's list, the six books (fiction) which have sold best in the order of demand during March are:

COMMUNICATIONS.

Fellow Booksellers:

The Committee on Program for the next Convention of the American Booksellers' Association in May is desirous of making a concrete exhibit of Practical Publicity Plans. It is desired that every member of the Association contribute specimens of such publicity agents as have been unusually successful in attracting attention and making sales. These will be classified and displayed at the convention. If the members respond, the convention can be made exceedingly profitable as a clearing house of ideas. "Give and Get" should be the motto of every member of this Association.

GEORGE F. WARFIELD

To attain this end, will you kindly send to the undersigned, at once, any or all of the following items, that you have reason to believe have been especially useful in attracting business or in facilitating the rapid and accurate dispatch of same:

Photographs and Descriptions of Window Displays.

Samples of Circulars, Pamphlets, Catalogues or other advertising matter of any kind.

Proofs (if possible) of Newspaper Advertising.

Samples of Office Forms of Stationery, Letter Heads, Envelopes, Statements, Bills, Receipts, Notices, Duns, etc.

Specimens of forms used in running a Circulating Library.

Description of any plan or scheme by which you obtained unusual results in the selling of any kind of goods.

To make this feature of the next convention a success demands the co-operation of every member. Send me the specimens by mail or express, prepaid, before April 10th, so I will have time to classify, arrange and mount them, and write me a letter embodying any points of explanation to go with them.

Then be sure to come to the convention in May, and see what the other fellow has sent. Your ideas will be worth dollars to him, and his will likewise be valuable to you.

Do it now.

Very truly yours,

EUGENE L. HERR.

LANCASTER, PA., March 30th 1910.

QUERY.

We are asked who took over the books of the Carleton Publishing Co., formerly at 413 Broadway, New York City. Can any reader of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY give us any information on this point?

PICK-UPS.

REPORTER—"Mr. Ticker just gave me a big scoop on the investigation of his trust." Editor—"Fine! What are his terms?" Reporter—"As usual. Omit all names, dates, places, and the real facts in the case."—Puck.

"WILL you," a customer wrote to a London bookseller the other day, "please forward me a copy of Tennyson's poems? Do not send one bound in calf, because I am a vegetarian!"—Book Monthly.

ANOTHER bookshop story. Two ladies call and one asks for a copy of the Church Service, which is duly hunted out. Meanwhile the ladies, looking around a little, come upon "Captain Cook's Voyages." And from their whisperings there floats out the remark, "Oh, of course, it's about his recent discovery of the North Pole!"—Book Monthly.

A MODERATELY fond father discovered his young hopeful reading a dime novel.

"Unhand me, villain," the detected boy thundered, "or there will be bloodshed!"

"No," said the father grimly, tightening his hold on his son's collar. "Not bloodshed—woodshed."—Everybody's.

IN a suburban bookshop the other day a woman sought a copy of "The Servant in the House," Charles Rann Kennedy's morality play. "No, madam," declared the clerk, "we haven't 'The Servant in the House,' but we have 'The Woman's Helper,' a most excellent cookbook." Quite in line with this was a recent reference in print to "Lost Borders," Mary Austin's story of the Far West, which the Harpers recently published, as Mary Austin's "Lost Boarders."—The Book News Monthly.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

NIKOLA GREELEY-SMITH, granddaughter of Horace Greeley and a newspaper writer, was married April 1, in Greenwich, Conn., to Andrew W. Ford, make-up editor of the New York Evening Telegram.

It is now known that John Steventon, who has been announced as the author of "The Hermit of Capri," recently published by the Harpers, and whose name could not be further identified, is John Steventon Tarkington, father of Booth Tarkington. The news came as a surprise not only to readers, but to Mr. Tarkington's friends, not one of whom had guessed that he was a writer. It now appears that under the first part of his name Mr. Tarkington has published articles in several magazines, and has been writing to please himself for a number of years. "The Hermit of Capri" is a story laid in that island, where both father and son have sojourned and have declared themselves contented to live. The elder Mr. Tarkington, having passed his seventieth birthday, may now be numbered among the oldest as well as the newest of Indiana authors.

LAWRENCE PERRY, author of "Dan Merrieth," which will be published shortly by A. C. McClurg & Co. was born in 1875. In 1897 he became the marine reporter of the New York Evening Sun, spending his days in a little shanty at the Battery absorbing the life of South Street and the harbor in general, forming acquaintances with sea-captains, both windjammers and steam, Battery boatmen, longshoremen, sailors' boarding-house keepers and tugboatmen. In the course of his work he knocked up and down the coast on tugs and schooners, and material thus gained has appeared in the shape of magazine fiction in the past ten years. In 1907, in conjunction with his duties upon the Post, he became editor of Yachting, and is still one of the editors of that periodical in addition to being yachting and marine editor of the Evening Post. Color, not technical detail, has ever been the end he sought in the long-neglected romance of the Port of New York—ships from Persia, the India boats with their Lascar and Mongolian crews, the little cocoanut trading schooners from the San Blas coast with their Indian sailors, the great deep-sea square-riggers—the last of a great race—the dingy, rusty little tramps from the Tyne, the Clyde and the Mersey, the ancient mariners who gather around ship-chandlery stoves, the Battery rowboatmen all described. In "Dan Merrieth," his new novel, South Street and vicinity, its people and conditions, are set forth for the first time between the covers of a novel.

PERSONAL NOTES.

EDWARD M. FOSTER, the well-known bookseller of Jackson, Mich., recently had his thirty years' service as organist of the local St. Paul's Church pleasantly remembered by the members of the church. Beside a verbal appreciation of his long work, the members of the congregation joined in a substantial monetary testimonial.

J. K. GILL, President of the J. K. Gill Co., of Portland, Oregon, accompanied by Mrs. Gill will sail from New York for Naples, April 23d, on the Steamer "Berlin." They will stop at the principal cities on the Continent, and then spend a month or more in England visiting Mr. Gill's birthplace. Mr. Gill will have only a day or two in New York going, and regrets that he will not be able to call on his old friends in the trade, but will endeavor to see them on his return.

PERIODICAL NOTES.

THE THEATER MAGAZINE, of 26 West 23d Street, New York City, has purchased the well-known fashion magazine, L'Art de la Mode. L'Art de la Mode, now in its twenty-eighth year, will be continued as an independent property under its present title.

ADAM BUDGE (Incorporated) announces the publication of a monthly magazine, Arts and Decoration, the first number of which is to appear October 15, 1910, for the month of November. Arts and Decoration will be published under the management of Walter A. Johnson, from the same advertising and circulation departments organized for The International Studio, and will be printed upon the same presses. Arts and Decoration, however, will have a distinctive editorial policy of its own. The subscription price will be $1.80 a year, 15 cents a number.

A NEW rival to the syndicated "Sunday magazines" now in operation will appear shortly under the name of the Monthly Magazine. The Associated Sunday Magazines was the pioneer in the field; it has now the Illustrated Sunday Magazines and the Literary Magazine as vigorous competitors. The new venture is under the auspices of the Philadelphia North American, the Washington Post, the Pittsburg Dispatch, the Cincinnati Enquirer, the St. Louis Globe-Democrat and the Chicago Tribune; and is being engineered by Lynn S. Abbott, formerly connected with Success, later with Suburban Life and still more recently of Vogue and the Style Book, and Ralph E. Briggs was also once connected with Success. A. W. Rolker, a contributor to the Saturday Evening Post and formerly editor of Pearson's Magazine, will be editor. The first issue will appear June 12.

THE new course in journalism at the University of Wisconsin is said to possess a "laboratory" with unusually complete equipment in imitation of a regular newspaper office. There are files of typical news stories selected and mounted for study, illustrations of typesetting machinery, printing presses, etc., and a sample "morgue" with obituaries and cuts of prominent people. For actual effectiveness, however, it may be doubted whether this can compare with the student York. Ships from Persia, the India boats inally an outgrowth of the college daily newspaper, the latter is now a completely equipped modern plant, housed in a new reinforced concrete office building which it erected and owns, and is officered, planned and manned throughout by the students of the University. This plant does an increasing amount of work for the general public, is not only self-supporting but profitable, and probably gives more genuine instruction in journalism than a dozen courses of lectures.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just ready "Bianca's Daughter," by Justus Miles Forman, author of "Buchanan's Wife," "Jason," etc.; "Flower of the Grass," a volume of poems by Ada Foster Murray; and "The Flowers," a story by Margarita Spalding Gerry, author of "The Toy Shop."

THOMAS WHITTAKER, INC., published last week a biographical sketch of the late Bishop Potter, entitled "Bishop Potter, the People's Friend." It is specially a portrayal of that side of his life brought out by his relation to social questions. The author is Harriette A. Keyser, of the Church Association for the Advancement of the Interests of Labor.

THE BAKER & TAYLOR COMPANY announce that they will publish, as late spring books, the two classics illustrated by the English artist—George Soper—"Lamb's Tales from Shakespeare" and Charles Kingsley's "Water Babies." The books are described as being examples of very striking and beautiful illustration, containing a number of artistic pictures in color.

G. W. DILLINGHAM COMPANY announce for April issue "The Happy Family," by the author of "Chip of the Flying U." This is the seventh volume of B. M. Bower's cowboy stories. "The Land of Frozen Suns," by B. M. Sinclair, author of "Raw Gold," "Tinsel and Gold," by Dion Clayton Calthrop, author of "Everybody's Secret," and "The Red Flag," by Georges Ohnet, author of "The Ironmaster."

STURGIS & WALTON are just in time with Henry W. Elson's book on "Comets: Their Origin, Nature and History," which discusses comets in general with special reference to Halley's comet which is about to make us one of its rare visits after being invisible for 76 years. The book begins with a survey of the solar system and its place in the universe written in the same attractive style of the writer's "Star-Gazer's Handbook," a brief guide for amateur students of astronomy.

Two books are to be added this spring to Macmillan's American Social Progress Series. Of these, the first, which will be published within a few weeks, is "Government Action for Social Welfare," by Jeremiah W. Jenks, Professor of Political Economy and Politics at Cornell University. The second addition to the series, which will follow somewhat later, is "Social Insurance; a Program of Social Reform," by Henry Rogers Seager, Professor of Political Economy at Columbia University.

THE second volume in Henry Holt & Company's biographies of leading Americans is to be "Leading American Novelists," by Professor John Erskine, of Columbia University, in which he will consider the following noted writers: Charles Brockden Brown, James Fenimore Cooper, William Gilmore Simms, Nathaniel Hawthorne, Harriet Beecher Stowe, and Bret Harte. This book may be expected about April 9, and is shortly to be followed by another by the well-known writer, Dr. William Morton Payne, on "Leading American Essayists."

CASSELL & COMPANY announce that they will be the publishers in this country of all the future books of Warwick Deeping, author of "The Red Saint," "Uther and Igraine," and other successful novels. Mr. Deeping's "Seven Streams" will appear shortly under the Cassell imprint. "The Rust of Rome," Mr. Deeping's new book, will be published by the Cassells about May 1. Here, it is said, Mr. Deeping deals with problems of modern life with the same individual power and vigor which distinguished his successful mediæval stories.

BROWNE'S BOOKSTORE, Chicago, has made a neat little booklet of J. M. Barrie's tribute to Meredith, which originally appeared in the London Westminster Gazette for May 26, 1909, under the title, "Neither Dorking Nor the Abbey." When it was decided that Meredith should not have his ashes placed in Westminster Abbey the sunny graveyard of Dorking village was selected. Barrie says "the greatest man since Shakespeare" lies neither in Dorking nor the Abbey, but lives in his women characters especially, "who go their ways carrying his glory through the world."

ACCORDING to the Scientific American success has been attained in the latest of the many attempts which have been made to use old newspapers and other printed sheets in the manufacture of white paper. "The removal of the printer's ink from the fibre has hitherto presented an insuperable difficulty. In a process recently patented in Germany, the paper pulp is treated with alkaline solutions of peroxides of the metals of the alkalis and alkaline earths, which so alter the greasy part of the ink that it ceases to bind the lampblack and other pigments, which are then easily separated from the fibre by emulsifying the pulp with the gelatinous silica."

"THE ISLANDS OF TITICACA AND KOATI," by Adolph F. Bandelier, published this week by the Hispanic Society of America, records archaeological explorations made by the author and his wife, 1892-96, under the auspices of the American Museum of Natural History. Aside from the natural difficulties incident to work among a barbaric people, far from supplies, the little expedition was hindered by a civil war in Peru and an Indian insurrection. Nevertheless much interesting information was obtained regarding the customs and myths of the present day aborigines and valuable relics and data of prehistoric and later races whose ruins are found in the Titicaca region.

THE FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY will publish this month "The Spiritual Unrest," by Ray Stannard Baker, postponed from last month; and "Rosamond the Second," an unusual novel by Mary Mears. Claudius, the brilliant young scientist, is rejected by the beautiful Rosamond—whereupon he makes a new Rosamond! The lurid lights of the laboratory glow upon a wonderful process which astounds the scientific world—and lo, a walking, talking, apparently intelligent creature comes forth upon the earth, not to be distinguished from his sweetheart. The delicate developments which follow may be imagined.

"ONE thing that strikes me very forcibly," said Thomas Nelson Page in a newspaper interview recently, "is the difference between the way in which American books are received in England and the manner in which English books are received on this side. While English essays appear to me to be better generally than ours, our novel seems to me quite as good as the English productions of that class. The only difference possibly is that our people like to read about English life, thinking they will absorb something remarkable, whereas an English reader cares absolutely nothing about anything outside of England unless it be a tale of adventure. But for one favorable notice of an American book in England you will find fifty of an English book in America."

THE GRAFTON PRESS, of New York City, announces for publication this season "Early Rhode Island, a Social History of the People," by William B. Weeden, of Providence, R. I.; "A Cruise of the U. S. Practise Ship 'S. P. Chase,'" by Surgeon-General Walter Wyman, of the Marine Hospital Service; Rev. Enos Hitchcock, D.D., a chaplain in the Revolution, his diary, other writings and ancestry, arranged and edited by William B. Weeden and Frederick H. Hitchcock; "The Grafton Index for 1909," containing the titles of all books and magazine articles published in the United States on history, genealogy and biography; "The Early Wills in New Castle County, Delaware," compiled by the Colonial Dames of Delaware; "The Pendleton Genealogy," by E. H. Pendleton; "The Talbot Genealogy," by Ida M. Shirk; and "The Tyler Genealogy," by W. T. Tyler Brigham.

HARPER & BROTHERS publish shortly "Hearts Contending," a novel of which more than a little may be expected, by Georg Schock, who is known as a writer of short stories which have appeared in Harper's, Scribner's and other magazines, and have commanded attention and praise from many critics, foremost among whom is Mr. Howells. Georg Schock lives in Pennsylvania and is an intimate observer of scenes like those in "Hearts Contending," which are laid in a Pennsylvania valley of German settlement, the Heiligthal—Heilig being the name in the story of the patriarch of the valley who mistakenly attempts to rule the lives of three passionate sons. The work of Georg Schock has sometimes been pointed out as bearing a resemblance to Phillpotts's Westmoreland tales. "The people all have souls," has been said of them, "and work out spiritual problems in a kind of intellectual twilight." It is said that the scene of "Hearts Contending" might be anywhere, the only passage that fixes the location being a single mention of Philadelphia.

FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY will publish late in April "American Cities That People Now Rule," by John T. Hamilton, a study of the so-called "Commission Plan" of municipal government evolved by the Galveston crisis. Important crises in our great American cities have called forth the united vote of many citizens who, except under special stress, would not have exercised their franchise. Good, or at least reformed, government followed usually upon the victory of the better element at the polls. But such regime has lapsed again when the out-voted party crept back into power, and another period of misrule ensued. It will be most welcome news to the advocates of municipal reform to know that "the Commission Plan" successfully tried in Galveston and extended and developed still more in Des Moines, Iowa, has already been taken up by many of our American cities in the East as well as the West. The Commission Plan entails good government because, among other things, it eliminates the ward system. The book will interest every public-spirited citizen.

BOUCK WHITE'S "Book of Daniel Drew," which Doubleday, Page & Co. publish this week, is the first adequate biography this spectacular figure has received. Drew was one of the notorious Drew-Gould-Fisk-Tweed combine that wrecked the Erie Railroad in the early 70's. So dingy was his career that his biographer feared to treat it in the ordinary way, lest its seeming bitterness should react and excite sympathy for the man. So Bouck White conceived the brilliant idea of having him tell his own story, and has produced the first adequate biography of the most picturesque and spectacular figure Wall Street has even seen. The provincial, uncouth language gives the book a humorous tone, while the unabashed self-revelment that was characteristic of Drew, and his attitude of explanation and self-justification, combined with the facts of Drew's gigantic schemes and titanic projects make this inside view of the Fisk-Gould-Tweed regime tremendously fascinating. But what places this book above the level of ordinary Wall Street revelations, is the personality of the man—a personality which by its human interest will grip hold of every reader whether he be familiar with big financial transactions or not.

THE tablet which Professor Herman V. Hilprecht, of the University of Pennsylvania, announced three weeks ago that he had discovered on an expedition to Palestine, and which he alleged upheld the biblical story of the deluge, was denounced last week at a meeting of the American Oriental Society at the Johns Hopkins University as a fabrication. In an address on "The Latest Additions to the Babylonian Literature of the Deluge Story," by Professor George A. Barton, of Bryn Mawr, Dr. Barton said that the restorations which Dr. Hilprecht made in the filling in of broken lines were purely conjectural; that the dialect in which the tablet is written belongs to a wholly later period than that alleged by him, and that his allegation is based upon a mistranslation of the Babylonian text, which, in turn, rests upon a misunderstanding of the Hebrew text and upon the pure unbridled imagination of the translator. In the exciting discussion which followed the paper Dr. Barton was upheld and corroborated by both Professor Paul Haupt, of the Johns Hopkins University, and Professor Albert T. Clay, of Yale.

THE YALE UNIVERSITY PRESS makes the important announcement that it will publish during the autumn of this year "The Records of the Federal Convention of 1787," under the editorship of Max Farrand, of the Department of History at Yale University. The Federal Convention of 1787 was the most important body of its kind in America, for it framed the Constitution of the United States. The proceedings of this convention are naturally of the greatest interest because the intention of its members has been an important factor in the interpretation of the Constitution. Its work has, therefore, attracted a great deal of attention, and much study has been devoted to it. Various editions of the two or three principal records of its proceedings have appeared. Until now the printed records have been scattered through a dozen or more different works, and there has been, until this time, some material of considerable value unpublished. Evident need has thus existed for this new and complete edition of "The Records of the Federal Convention," which brings together, in a single work, all of these scattered records. It is expected by the Yale University Press that the exhaustive search made by Professor Farrand will result in the present work proving to be a definitive edition of the "Records of the Federal Convention of 1787." It is expected that the records will appear in three royal octavo volumes, with special limited subscriber's edition, on English hand-made paper.

THE BALL PUBLISHING COMPANY announce among their new publications three volumes of essays: "Essays in Criticism, Third Series," by Matthew Arnold, frankly claimed as the most important literary event of 1910, as it includes for the first time Arnold's greatest essay, "On the Modern Spirit in Literature," which he delivered as his inaugural lecture in the Chair of Poetry at Oxford; "A Renegade Poet and Other Essays," by Francis Thompson, an English classic of humorous thought and delightful workmanship; "The Man Forbid and Other Essays," by John Davidson, a notable volume of essays by the poet who disappeared last year which will show him as fully equal to Gilbert Chesterton in caustic paradox. Among their other spring books are "Automobile Kinks, or, Answers to What's the Matter?" by Charles E. Duryea, "The Original Auto Man," a pocket handbook on the automobile in non-technical style; "A Pocket Handbook of Checkers," by Adrian Barker, an elementary work leading up to scientific playing; "Restricted Diet Made Palatable," by M. T. Caro, recipes for cooking appetizing dishes in complete accordance with the dietary restrictions prescribed for diabetes, obesity and such other conditions as forbid the use of sugars, starches and other carbohydrates; "Beyond the Borderline of Life," by Gustavus Myers, a comprehensive study of the present standing of psychical research among the leading scientists of to-day, together with an account of the remarkable experiences of Professor Botazzi with Eusapia Paladino, and Hereward Carrington's answer to Professor Munsterberg's so-called exposé of this medium; and another of the "Cross References" between Mrs. Piper, Mrs. Verrall and others.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

A VERY valuable assistant for the increasingly large number of people who are interested in genealogical matters is "The Grafton Index of Historical, Genealogical, and Biographical Books and Magazine Articles," published quarterly in the Grafton Magazine of History and Genealogy (The Grafton Press, publishers, New York). In this index will be found the titles of all books published during the three months just preceding the date of issue of the Grafton Magazine, with the name of their publishers, and also the titles of all such articles in some sixty of the leading periodicals. No current compilation of the kind has been attempted before, and it fills a long felt want among librarians, genealogists and students of history generally.

THE unique collection of autographed books, which by dint of immense patience, energy and expense, James Carleton Young, of Minneapolis, has acquired, comprise a great and priceless library of literary masterpieces of the world, including the best literature of the leading countries, as well as of such slightly known countries as Iceland, Persia and Tasmania. Nearly all of them are first editions, writes Herbert Randolph Galt, in the April World's Work, and in the acquisition of them Mr. Young has received the hearty co-operation of such notable personages as Queen Elizabeth of Roumania; Mme. Ragozin, the Russian historian; William E. Norris, the British novelist; and John Barrett, director general of the Bureau of American Republics. Mr. Young has discouraged all publicity concerning his collection, preferring to wait until his work is finished, or as nearly so as it is possible, before talking about it. He intends ultimately to bestow it upon some American university or the nation.

THE new building of the Jewish Theological Seminary, New York City, is said to house one of the most complete collections of Hebraica in the world, all built up practically in the last six years. The nucleus was the seminary's own collection of 5000 volumes. Then Mayer Sulzberger, of Philadelphia, a trustee, gave his own Jewish library of 10,000 volumes, with many rarities; and Jacob H. Schiff donated the famous library of Dr. Moritz Steinschneider. Other rare additions have completed the library's present 33,000 volumes. Comprised in this magnificent collection are mediæval scientific works in Arabic, Hebrew and Latin, mediæval codices and legal decisions, an enormous literature on the liturgy of the synagogue, rare rituals, 57 out of the known 101 Hebrew incunabula (next to the British Museum's, the most complete collection in the world), numberless editions and versions of the Bible and Talmud, and a whole library on the mysteries of the Kabbala, the mystic writings of the Hebrew race.

A FAVORITE AUTHOR'S NEWEST

WAYWARD ANNE

By Curtis Yorke

THE secret of Curtis Yorke's popularity with "all sorts and conditions" of readers is that she writes from experience in life and art, that she possesses clearness of vision, and that in all her work there is a refreshing absence of the "mechanical" and the "unreal." The plot of "Wayward Anne" is simplicity itself—but it is the simplicity of the art which conceals art. An unconventional friendship of a man, who is under a cloud, with a girl who believes in him, forms its basis; and surrounding this initial episode are a series of events and incidents and happenings which lead up to an inevitable climax, and which are related with all that enchanting purity of thought and style and method which are characteristic of this author's work. Indeed, to fulfil the high expectations of her innumerable followers would appear to be a task easy of accomplishment to Curtis Yorke.
